Monthly Memo From The Board

May 2021

Florida AHRMM Members,

The pandemic grabbed the health care world like a yearlong storm. The speed of the virus transmission and the resulting losses, triggered the need for an extraordinary rapid response for safety and containment. Every aspect of our lives was disrupted: our health, freedom of movement, employment, the economy, our ability to buy goods, and virtually every Supply Chain activity. What is the Supply Chain lesson from this tragedy?

As a leader, I believe every member of your team is number one and deserves the opportunity to learn at their own pace and participate in activities that inspire and encourage growth. During the past year, I have received many good ideas from teammates and peers on how to manage the pandemic and the new experience of remote working. Take this opportunity to make time to gather ideas and suggestions from co-workers and other sources both inside and outside of healthcare. Then, with a small working team determine which ideas have the most value for your situation.

We, as a collective at FL AHRMM, have an opportunity to meet and share ideas and learnings that will bring efficiencies and value to our organizations and to our patients. Let's use this expertise and vision to turn these ideas into working plans that will increase value and help your department meet short and long-term goals. I look forward to getting together again in person to network with colleagues and to meet and make new friends.

I hope to see you all in June!
